INTERVIEW WITH LAWYER SIMON VUMBACA DEL VIVO DURING ITALY DAY

The international Italy Day meeting saw Biagio Oppi - the Motorsport Expotech delegate - interview Lawyer Simon Vumbaca Del Vivo.

Oppi: Mr. Vumbaca Del Vivo, where did you study?

Vumbaca Del Vivo: I was born in Genoa but lived and studied in France, earning a Degree in Jurisprudence and MBA at the "Assas" University in Paris.

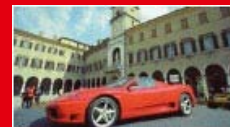

Oppi: What are you currently involved in?

Vumbaca Del Vivo: I have lived for many years in England and am a member of the prestigious EMW Picton Howell law firm in London. My work for the firm focuses on my specialities as an international and European lawyer involving everything concerning company and commercial law, licensing and procurement that also involves Italian companies with commercial interests in England.

Oppi: How did you get involved in the Motorsport world? And what are your tasks in this sector?

Vumbaca Del Vivo: I am a member of the MIA (Motorsport Industry Association) and have more than 15 years of particular experience in Motorsport and Automotive spheres in general, not the least by representing foreign companies negotiating with Italian companies and, especially, Italian companies seeking to do business in England and must therefore be adequately safeguarded against technicalities (so dear to the British), legal, contractual, commercial and, as the case may be, even cultural/linguistic differences. I regularly assist clients by preparing and negotiating commercial agreements of every kind (sponsorships, licensing, distribution, development, confidentiality & NDA's, etc.). My objective is to create agreements that establish a long-term and rewarding relationship for the parties, in order to maximise understanding and reduce the overall cost global of the service.
